Community Resources

The ability of your neighborhood, workplace or school to respond effectively after an act of terrorism, a large earthquake, or another disaster might depend on how well you use resources available in your community now.

Local fire, law enforcement, medical services and other personnel might be overwhelmed and unable to assist you after a damaging event. But they can help you prepare to be self-sufficient if you use their services before the next emergency.

Learning what resources are available in your community and using them now is an important step in preparing for future disasters.

TAKE ACTION

On the other side of this sheet you will find useful information on resources that may be available. Don't let events catch you by surprise. The preparations you make today will increase your peace of mind in any emergency, even a terrorist attack.

WHAT YOU CAN DO NOW FIND OUT WHAT'S AVAILABLE

Local government is usually the first to respond to emergencies. Additional assistance from neighboring cities and the impacted county might be available as your city uses all of its resources. As resources from the surrounding cities and the county are used up, personnel and equipment from communities outside the impacted area might be brought in to assist.

A disaster in a heavily urbanized area might overwhelm the emergency response system, leaving you, your neighbors or co-workers on your own for at least 72 hours. Be prepared to:

- Provide food and water to those who don't have or cannot access their own emergency supplies
- Provide basic first aid to family members, neighbors, co-workers or classmates who are injured
- Conduct light search and rescue operations to account for everyone and remove those who are trapped
- Assess obvious external damage to homes and other buildings and report information to local officials
- Listen to the radio for safety information from government officials and details about available resources

NEIGHBORHOOD RESOURCES

Prior to the next emergency it's important to determine what skills you might be able to draw from your own neighborhood. Among your neighbors, there might be:

- Emergency planners
- Firefighters
- Health care professionals
- Police officers, deputy sheriffs or other law enforcement officers
- Community emergency response team members
- Citizen Corps councils
- Others with helpful skills

These individuals or groups can be useful resources for information, planning, training and other aspects of your preparedness and response efforts.

GOVERNMENT RESOURCES

Local, state, federal and volunteer agencies such as the American Red Cross are other sources for information about individual, family, community, business and school preparedness. Before the next emergency, contact and obtain from these organizations publications and videos that will help you better prepare.

Ask these agencies about the possibility of providing speakers and training on various aspects of emergency preparedness and response. Involve experts from these organizations in any planning, training and exercises in which your neighborhood, workplace or school is involved. Their observations and input will help improve your response to an actual emergency.

A checklist of agencies that might be able to assist you with resources before and/or after a major disaster includes the following:

- American Red Cross
- Salvation Army
- City/County Office of Emergency Services
- Community Emergency Response Teams

This focus sheet is produced as part of the Emergency Survival Program (ESP). ESP is an awareness campaign designed to increase home, neighborhood, business and school emergency preparedness. ESP was developed by the County of Los Angeles. The California Governor's Office of Emergency Services (OES) and representatives from Imperial, Inyo, Kern, Los Angeles, Mono, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Santa Cruz, and Ventura counties, Southern California Edison, the Southern California Earthquake Center and the American Red Cross assist in the development of campaign materials and coordination of the campaign.
